THE FUTURE?

Our parents grew up during a period when our nation was changing from an agricultural society to an industrial era. They could not have foreseen the changes that were wrought during their lifetime. The students of today who have grown up in an industrial era are in somewhat the same position of foretelling changes that they are destined to experience. Yet we all hear the phrase, "Plan for the future." Planning implies that we know what the future holds for us, our families, the society. Such is not the case.

But while we cannot know for certain what the future holds, there is one thing about which we can be sure. The only thing certain is change. And if our history can be used as an example, it is quite likely that changes will continue at an ever accelerated rate.

As students, you have established a body of basic knowledge on which continuous learning can be built. As a member of the work force, you will be required to continue to build on this knowledge and the experiences gained. Knowing the certainty of change, and not the "what, where, how, or why," what can we do? Can we design our future so that we are capable of understanding and performing at our present level and ready to move to another level or, if necessary, to another occupation?

We can, if we organize our lives, our future education, our work experiences so that we are best prepared to respond to the uncertainty of the nature of the changes. The question we face is: To what degree will we be willing to devote the time and effort to maintain the pace necessary to be ready for the changes that are evident? The choice is ours, the alternate most undesirable.

IN TIME

When a symphony orchestra blends its people and its instruments to perform the works of a great composer, the result is a presentation that is truly "in touch, in tune, and in time." Taken as a microcosm of life, the symphony orchestra approaches the ideal. Its members must be in "touch" with others in the aggregation; they must be attuned to the music and, if their efforts are to be successful, each artist must be in step with the other. State Technical Institute at Memphis is, itself, a quest for the ideal. Although such a Utopian dream is unattainable marching to different drummers, the students, faculty and staff at State Tech continue to seek the unattainable and find comfort, friendship, knowledge, and satisfaction in the process.

IN TOUCH

"In touch" is a phrase of near limitless meanings. It is physical. It is mental. It may be tender or brutal. It is both specific and general. People touch with their hands. They keep "in touch" by telephone and by a wink of an eye, by a letter or a wave of the hand. But, being "in touch" at State Tech is a composite of all the acceptable touch modes. It is being part of an Institution that is "in touch" with the times and is being integral to the human scene of an educational setting. "In touch" at this school is a cooperative attitude, a willingness to share, a desire to give and to take as the occasion requires. Being in touch is much more than "rolling with the flow." Staying in touch with your fellowman requires some honest effort which is perhaps best reflected in "The Golden Rule".

IN TUNE

Although the normal reaction to the words, "in tune" relates in some manner to music, the words actually imply a limitlessness similar to that found in the words, "in touch." Specifically, a musical instrument or voice or combinations of those may be considered "in tune" for proper music. By the same token, a beautifully honed and balanced racing engine is "in tune" when it reaches a certain peak performance. It is not difficult, then, to relate being "in tune" to the acts of daily living. To be in tune in life does not necessarily mean a person is acquiescent to all that transpires around him. To the contrary, disagreement may well be more tuneful than placid agreement. One may not be totally attuned to society and yet be in full accord within one's self.

IN TIME

"At this point in time" is one of the most overworked cliches in modern history. Not only is the term over used as part of the bureaucratic vernacular, it is a grammatical redundancy. "Now" is the simple, direct substitute for the five-word phrase so common to bureacurats. And "now" "in time" with anything, except at an immediate moment. The "now" factor is all-important to the individual. You can not be any place other than where you are at this moment. It is impossible to live yesterday or tomorrow. Modern psychologists are placing more and more emphasis on the "now" of life, placing remorse or anxiety in a different perspective. They obviously find value in being "in time" with yourself first.

WHO'S WHO

AMERICAN JUNIOR COLLEGES
AMERICAN VOCATIONAL AND TECHNICAL SCHOOLS

Each Fall, each student who has a cumulative grade point average of 3.0 or better and has completed 70 or more quarter hours is contacted by mail and asked to complete a community/campus involvement survey. From this a list is compiled of those students who meet the involvement criteria and circulated to all faculty and staff for evaluation of the student using the following guidelines. Maturity in on-the-job situations, leadership ability, potential for future achievement, personality, and ability to get along with others. After the faculty/staff evaluation those students who have been cleared are nominated to Who's Who in American Junior Colleges and Who's Who in American Vocational and Technical Schools. The 1977-78 Who's Who list is as follows:

GEORGE ALLEN
JULIA METCALFE

From Your Editor,

This year's annual staff has been one of the finest State Tech has had. The staff has worked har and diligently to give you, the students, and faculty a fine yearbook.

Special thanks to Ruby, Robert, Bertram, Charlie, Tom, Della and Frank for being there and gettin the job done. To Pam Powell, our Advisor, who gave us the strength to hang-in-there. To Ed Brow for making it all possible. Many, many thanks to the Student Services Department for giving me th pleasure and privilege of being your 1978-79 Yearbook Editor.
